Before you dine, try going online

Two food sites to nibble on:

- www.Recipe4Living.com offers user-rated recipes, coupons, daily recipe e-mails and chat features for dedicated home cooks; star chef Wolfgang Puck contributed commentary to the site.

- www.Videojug.com offers step-by-step videos on a variety of topics, including food. The videos are sometimes inadvertently funny -- we would be exhausted by the time we reached "Step 10: Present the canapes to your guests" if we were making stuffed potato canapes -- but the advice is sound and easy to follow. (It's also the place to go if you want to learn how to talk about animals in British sign language.)
